Eye The Bomb's five members bring together influences from their love of rock, hip-hop, funk and old skool rap to create a dynamic, polished sound which perfectly fuses together different styles in an adrenaline-pumping wall of sound.

Soaring rock-style guitar riffs are backed by driving basslines and rock solid live drumming to provide a perfect platform to showcase frontman Ric Hulme's intense stage presence and thought-provoking vocal musings. Eye The Bomb differentiate themselves from their contemporaries by complimenting their sound with a series of punchy synth riffs, DJ scratching and traditional keyboards.

The band put a lot of thought into live performances – an Eye The Bomb set is designed to take the audience on a musical odyssey with a defined beginning, middle and end. Watch out for their seemingly spontaneous musical interludes showcasing DJ Dan Horrobin's scratching skills or lead guitarist Kieran Horsfield's astonishing solo work.

Eye The Bomb have performed at many high profile events, both in their current incarnation and previously under their old moniker, The Cheeky Keys. Their upbeat, dancy style and beautifully constructed sound makes Eye The Bomb an ideal match for festival and event bookings.
